

Reducing these emissions will help safeguard public health, improve visibility and protect the environment. Duke Power Co. and Progress Energy Corp., the two major utility companies in North Carolina, must reduce actual year-round emissions reductions at their 14 power plants.

More information about air pollution and related issues can be found at the Division of Air Quality's Web site: www.ncair.org/

###